

This week has been full of traditional tales, from the Caribbean tale of Anancy and Mr Dry-Bone to our more modern Nativity. We can't wait to hear some of your much-loved traditional tales over the weekend!

Our Learning Journey

We've spent some time exploring number sequences and missing number problems this week using a mix of resources: number lines, 100-squares, number cards, money, and games (of course!)

Sorting and spotting missing numbers

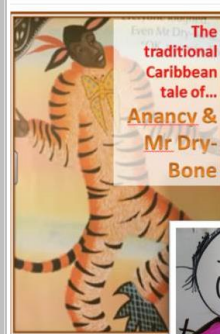

The children have spent their money wisely this morning (on your presents) with their new found knowledge!

All week we have been bargain hunting around the classroom to see which goodies are for sale. We were really excited when we discovered this included some of our traditional tales books, but Mrs MacCormack didn't look too pleased - somebody had priced these up without her knowing!

Bargain hunters

In literacy we've been learning about traditional tales. We know that we have friends with families from India, Jamaica and Scotland, amongst other places. We have read the Caribbean traditional tale of Anancy and Mr Dry-Bone (Anancy wore an amazing outfit made from donations of the jungle animals). We loved designing our own crazy outfits and thinking about the other animals that live in the jungle!

Star learner this week is...

Drew!

Your drawing of Anancy from our story was perfectly labelled and your focus admirable!

Well done Drew!

Reminders to Families

Nativity: Please bring in costumes by Friday 2nd December. If you don't have a full costume but can bring in part of it then that's great - we can sort the rest for you.

*Many thanks,
Mrs MacCormack*
